PHILIPPINE SLAVERY*SECRETARY GARRISON ORDERS
INVESTIGATION BY NEWLY APPOINTED GOVERNOR.*EXPECT PROSECUTIONS*Attorney General Will Submit Report
On Adequacy of Present Laws
For Punishment of Offenders.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]Washington, Sept. 22.—Secretary Garrison will direct an investigation of charges of Dean Worcester and W. H. Phipps, auditor of the Philippines, that slavery exists in the island. The investigation will be made by Governor Charles Francis Burton Harrison. The administration will get formal opinion from the attorney general of the Philippines on the sufficiency of existing laws for punishment of slavery and persecution of offenders.*Goes Home to Vote.*President Wilson will leave the capitol early tomorrow for Princeton, N. J., to vote for Acting Governor Fielder in the democratic gubernatorial primary. It will be the first time the president has visited his home town since he left March 3 to come to Washington. He will be there only a few hours, however, returning to Washington the same evening.*Courtesies Under Treaty.*Free entry of wood pulp and paper was granted by the treasury today to Belgium and Denmark under the favored nation clause of their treaties. The action follows the principle of customs court decision granting to Europe free wood pulp and paper to which that privilege is accorded to Canada.*Untermier's Views.*Samuel Untermier counsel for the house money trust investigation of the last congress gave his ideas of currency reform today to the senatorial banking committee. Mr. Untermier endorsed generally the principle of the administration's currency bill passed by the house last week, but suggested a number of amendments.Stands For Bill."I wish it understood," said Mr. Untermier, "that I am an unqualified champion of the principles on which this bill is based that is an asset currency, issued through the banks as a government obligation and under the control of the government, but I believe the bill is overgenerous to the bankers in freeing them from complications."*Criticisms Portions.*Mr. Untermier criticised adversely the provisions allowing bankers to deal in acceptances given for the exportation or importation of goods. "This is a discrimination," he said, "against domestic business and would make money cheaper to men in foreign trade than to domestic merchants."*PANEL FOR INQUEST JURY TO BE DRAWN*To Investigate Death of Anna Aumuller, Slain by "Father" Schmidt. German Crime Record.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]Calumet, Mich., Sept. 22.—The injunction granted by circuit Judge O'Brien on petition of the mine managers, prohibiting the copper miners in strike from picketing or parading around or going near the company town work or any other forbidding intervening in any way with workmen apparently had the desired effect this morning. With one exception there were no disturbances, one arrest was made at the South Kersarge mines.*The state military force in the strike district was reduced to about 500 men today, 120 departing for their homes.*GOVERNOR PARDONS LIFE TERM CONVICT*John Taborn, Oldest Convict in Ohio State Penitentiary, Given His Freedom.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 22.—After spending practically all his life since he reached manhood in the penitentiary walls, John Taborn, the oldest convict in the Ohio penitentiary, was freed today by Gov. Cox. Taborn had been a prisoner for 40 years. He was convicted of murder in Delaware county in 1870 and sentenced to life imprisonment. He is now 68 years of age.*GENERAL ELECTION
ON HOME RULE BILL*Liverpool Courier Makes Prediction
That One Will Take Place
Before Royal Assent Comes.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]Liverpool, Eng., Sept. 22.—The Liverpool Daily Courier, a conservative and unionist paper, says "that there will be a general election before the home rule bill for Ireland receives the royal assent which is necessary to make it law."*WEST POINT CADETS
MAKE STRONG APPEAL[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]Washington, Sept. 22.—Eighteen cadets at West Point now under punishment for hazing will lay themselves liable to court martial by appealing. Secretary Garrison will not wait for a trial to the superintendent of the military academy. The first complaint reached Washington today through a congressman. The cadets contend they are being punished for merely obeying their orders in drilling lower classmen. They are charged, however, with violating a regulation which forbids any cadet to force a lower classman to assume any ridiculous or humiliating posture.*War department officials say that forcing the unfortunate Freshman to puff out his chest or draw in his chin to a painful condition comes under the head of "developing youngsters" and not drill regulation.*SOUTH AMERICANS VISIT
WASHINGTON NAVY YARD[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]Washington, Sept. 22.—Escorted by a committee from the National Rifle Association with Col. J. J. Ewing, chairman, twenty-two members of the rifle team from Argentina and Peru which competed in the recent international rifle meet at Camp Perry, Ohio, spent a busy day here visiting the navy yard and many other points of interest.*Tomorrow they go to Annapolis.*Secretary Daniels having provided them with a special order for an inspection of the naval academy. The following day they will be at the Philadelphia navy yard where a special review of marines will be given.*IMPEACHMENT TRIAL
SUBJECT OF STUDY*Army of Representatives of Law Schools and Universities Following the Sulzer Case.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]Albany, Sept. 22.—While attorneys and newspaper men are working their way through the Sulzer impeachment trial, a small army of representatives of law school and universities from all over the world is following the case closely and preparing exhaustive reports.*These men are attracted here because of the few precedents which attorneys have to cite in cases of impeachment. Not since 1806 has there been an impeachment trial in the United States. Many points which are being covered in the Sulzer trial never were raised in previous cases. Long weeks have been spent by attorneys of both sides and members of the court of appeals in studying every phase of the past impeachment cases.*There was no morning session of the court today. The senators and judges were ordered to report promptly at two o'clock for the resumption of arguments by Attorney General Marshall of the Senate, counsel on certain points raised by his colleague on the constitutionality of the adjournment of the assembly last July. The failure of the assembly to receive notification that on reconvening the assembly would consider impeachment charges and the constitutionality of the impeachment itself on the ground that it was brought while the assembly was in extra session.*A hearing in the case of James A. Sulzer, great investigator in the Sulzer graft investigation, for contempt of the assembly, was announced for this afternoon at Troy.*Court Resumes Session.*Gov. Sulzer's legal artillery resumed action this afternoon when the court of high impeachment which began last week's trial for alleged high crimes and misdemeanors was called to order by Presiding Judge Cullen at 2 o'clock.Attorney Lewis J. Marshall continued the argument which he did not finish when the court adjourned on Monday in which he held that the governor was unconstitutionally impeached."With all solemnity," he said, "we express confidence that the tribunal will not be swayed from a proper and just regard of the mandate of the constitution by the unworthy suggestion to do so's to permit a technicality to triumph."*INJUNCTION QUIETS STRIKE DISTURBANCE*Only One Arrest Made in Calumet Mining District Today—Picketting Prohibited.

APOLLO CLUB OPENS SEASON NEXT MONTH

Sixteen Members of Thomas Orchestra Led by Albert Ulrich to Give First Program.

With a program given by sixteen members of the Theodore Thomas Chicago orchestra, led by Theodore Ulrich, on Monday evening, October 6, the Apollo Club will open its concert season for 1913-1914. This is the most pretentious program ever given by the club. The second recital will be given the first Monday in November by either a tenor or baritone of national reputation. Arrangements for the other programs are as yet incomplete.

Some ten years ago the Apollo club was organized due largely to the efforts and enthusiasm of the late Hon. Ogden H. Peabody, who although not a musician, was a patron and lover of music.

In its early history the Club made no effort to enlarge its membership. Later its directors thought it wise to admit new members and give to any and all who cared the opportunity to join and for a nominal amount to hear and enjoy famous musical artists. Since that time the membership has largely increased.

The scope of the Apollo club is not only educational, but has a broadening effect in the community at large, securing an appreciation for the harmony to be found in beautifully trained voices or greatest pianists, violinists, cellos or other instruments which are used in the Apollo recitals.

The present officers of the club are George S. Parker, president; A. P. Lovejoy, vice-president; C. P. Beers, secretary; William Bladon, treasurer; the directors; Prof. J. S. Taylor, A. P. Lovejoy, F. E. Lewis, E. I. Van Pool, C. P. Beers and George S. Parker.

Another Week Will be Given to an Investigation of Conditions Throughout the City.

Another week will be given over to health inspection work throughout the city according to Health Inspector Dr. S. B. Buckmaster today. The inspector who was engaged in the work last week will probably cover the entire area by the latter part of the present week. When the report is finally completed it will give some very valuable and definite information to sanitary and health conditions and may result in the inauguration of an improved system of sanitary supervision.

The health in the city is still very good according to Dr. Buckmaster. But three plagues are up at the present time, one being a case of scarlet fever which is now in the convalescent stage and the other two being typhoid fever.

LINK AND PIN

Chicago and Northwestern.

Within a short time passenger trains on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad will be equipped with the new speedometer which every train on the system will have. This device resembles a water gauge, the speed being registered on a dial index, thus making a permanent record for the inspection of the officials. The records will also be useful in investigations of accidents. The engine equipped with the speedometer and the new electric headlight to comply with the state law makes a most modern locomotive.

The engineering department of the Northwestern railroad is making an extensive survey to gain data on the Illinois and Spring Valley lines in Illinois, and the engineering force will make an up-to-date profile of the Galena road from the Fox River switch near Elgin to Freeport and the Spring Valley line from Belvidere to Spring Valley. This work will include careful surveys of all the grades and mapping of them, complete reports and carrying power of the structures and all data that will make it an easy matter to tell at a glance the tonnage capacity of that line. Heavier steel is being placed on the line because of the great increase of traffic.

Repairs at the JANESEVILLE roundhouse have nearly been completed and a force of men have been kept busy during the last month in preparing the shops for winter. The engine shop has been whitewashed and the heating plant inspected and everything in readiness for cold weather.

New arrangements have been ordered by the officials regarding the checking in and out of the employees. All employees when starting work must check in and must do the same on leaving work both in the a. m. and p. m. No checks will be given after the whistle blows and under no conditions will checks be given to, or accepted from, anyone, except the party to whom the check is assigned. What late employees must do to obtain a late slip, giving cause to the storekeeper to give a case of wishing to quit before the day's time is up, the workman must get a quit slip from the roundhouse foreman. The slips must show what employee has been working at and how many hours that he has worked. For overtime work separate slips are provided. No favors will be shown to any employees and the storekeeper will be held responsible for adherence to rules.

George Rude was ordered out yesterday with the wrecking crew to right a freight car that had been derailed at Jefferson Junction and the car was thrown at right angles to the track. NEW COMET PUZZLES WORLD ASTRONOMERS

Scientists all over the world are taking great interest in the comet recently discovered in Russia by the Astronomer Neppelin, according to Prof. E. E. Barnard, head of the astronomers at the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay.

The observatory is the astronomical research plant of Chicago university, and Prof. Barnard has been working diligently upon the new comet since it was first reported.

"It is of great interest," Prof. Barnard continued, "to know if it contains the characteristics of an asteroid and an asteroid, and while unquestionably placed by recent investigations in the classification of comets, at first was supposed to be an asteroid. The double resemblance to the asteroids and comets is its notable destination."

"This new comet was first discovered in Russia by photography. It was found on a photographic plate among the asteroids, of which there are many between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter."

"The discovery of asteroids are not reported to this country by cable, so we know nothing of it until a Hamburg astronomer by photography proved it to be a comet. Since then photographs have shown that it is a star-like body, resembling an asteroid, in having nebulosity, giving it the appearance of having a slight tail."

SPORT Snap-Shots

MORRIS MILLER

The action of the directors of the National league at Cincinnati a week or two ago was something quite new in baseball. The decision of the directors in the matter of a proposed league games have been played at New York Philadelphia game was to have threatened the dignity of President Lynch and to have established a precedent that will cause some little squabbling and bickering among other leagues—minor and all—for some time to come. The game in question took place at Philadelphia and McGraw protested it for the reason that a group of fans in the center field annoyed the New York players and Umpire Brennan forfeited the game to the Giants when the Philadelphia management refused to remove the noisy bleachers. President Lynch overruled Brennan's decision and gave the game to Philadelphia. When there was much loud voiced protest and indignation from Muggsy and his friends. And then the National league directors at their meeting reversed the decision of both Breman and Lynch and declared that the game was to be played over. It would appear that the directors have been a little indiscreet in listening too seriously to the angered shouts from New York. The Gotham sport press and McGraw's choruses have unbalanced their better judgment. And the result will be more petty bickering among all the leagues. For shame, National League directors!

When the Giants and Athletics met to settle the big dispute next month neither team will have a chance to complain that they are handicapped through an unfamiliarity with the enemy's grounds. Two years ago when they wrangled over this world's championship matter they both had a chance to study the home lot of their opponents and this fall the games will be played with Lake Geneva Military academy or either Whitewater or Jefferson. At present the team is having scrimage practice. Positions will be tentatively assigned either this week or next week.

WEATHERMAN SPOILS CHANCE FOR CONTEST

Floods of Rain and Icy Blasts Stop Cardinals from Crossing Bats With Footville White Sox.

The cruel and relentless weatherman played false to the Janesville Cardinals and baseball fans Saturday and Sunday, for instead of sending warm dry winds and plenty of sunshine he turned the big dipper upside down and sent an example of Arctic climate in his wrath. Both the players and fans either remained home beside the fire reading and figuring out dope for the world series or rescued last year's overcoat, cap with ear-hoppers and muffler, from the moth ball and sought places with plenty of heat.

The weatherman's ungentlemanly habits caused the calling off of the Janesville Cardinals-Footville White Sox till scheduled at the fair grounds Sunday afternoon. On Saturday the vain one emptied the showers on the driving park diamond and it was more fit for a polo game or rather a skating pond yesterday morning than for a place to hold an exhibition of the national pastime.

The Cardinals were loaded for the visitors and the disappointing weather was all they deserved from adding another seal to their list of wins. The Cardinal captain and manager both wore a broad and long grin when talking over prospects for Sunday's encounter as two leaders were out in the Card stables and ready to aid in the bumping of Tiffie. Sunday morning all the Cards heaped their wrath on the head of the weather villain and sad fate would have resulted could they only have spent their batting energy on the faithless weather. He will have gentle-mannered habits sooner or later, less freezing temperatures when the two teams cross bats at a later date.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP AT THE UNIVERSITY

Madison, Wis., Sept. 22.—The coaching staff at Wisconsin is up against a grave situation caused by the passing of the entire left half of the 1912 line. It was bad enough to lose Hoefel and Samp by graduation, but now comes the news that Edward Geelin, regular left guard, will be ineligible to play this year. Thus the left half of the line is wiped out entirely. Moreover, the coaches will have trouble to do to look after the department formerly covered by Gillette, quarterback, and Van Riper and Bright, halfbacks, lost by graduation. To develop a backfield from the reserves which will have the dependability and fighting power of last year's famous crew is the task that now faces Jansen and his assistants. There is general uncertainty among the candidates over their probable positions, and there will necessarily be much shifting about to find the best men for each particular point in the line.

On the other side of the line the situation is different and gratifying so. Ostlie, right end, Butler, all-American tackle, Keefer, left guard, and Walt Powell, center, all veterans of the championship 1912 team, there seems little chance of anyone else breaking into their territory, and candidates might as well center their hopes on finding berths on the stick-on-left side.

Tormey, last year's star sub in the quarterback position, is a probable choice for handling Gillette's job this year. Captain Tamborg will probably handle the punting department.

There is a plentiful array of good men to try out for the vacant positions, the number including Lange, reserve for two years; Starrum, 1912 freshman captain; Buck of Eau Claire, last year's freshman tackle; Beerman, first player and carman; Zink, substitute for Butler last year; Ambler, freshman guard last year; Schmidt, sub center last year; Miller, sub fullback; Tormey, Alexander and Berger, halfbacks, who have shown high class on the first eleven.

Tormey was used at halfback with success last year, but his peculiar liability lies in the quarterback position, which calls for lots of speed and field generalship. This Tormey has practiced with the head twice daily until just Thursday afternoon, and thereafter once a day.

WEATHER FORECAST.

For Janesville and vicinity: fair, with rising temperature, but with diminishing wind tonight conditions will be favorable for frost.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It will be noticed by an announcement on another page that the "Recorder" has been purchased by The Gazette Printing Company, and a news paper which has had an existence as a daily paper for the past thirty-six years passes into the realm of yesterday.

During its life it has played many parts in the civic life of Janesville. It has recorded the joys and sorrows of many homes. It has seen men come and go, and its eventful career passes to history because the field which it occupied no longer warranted its publication.

To the old-time readers and friends of the Recorder, the Gazette extends a hand-clap across the imaginary chasm, which has existed, with the assurance that we are not half so bad as we seem. The Gazette has lived with the town for more than half a century and was never better equipped for service than today. If you have a grievance the paper will give it thoughtful attention, or if inspired to express your views through the "Voice of the People" column, the space is at your disposal.

While we may differ on some questions of public policy, the differences are usually only surface deep, for we are all mutually interested in public and private well-being, and the Gazette is simply the medium of publicity, open to a free and fair discussion of all topics.

The Gazette aims to be a paper that can be read in every home in the county. It contains news from all the surrounding cities, towns, villages and neighboring communities. It has an unexcelled state service with special correspondents in Madison and other of the larger cities. It furnishes the news of the world through its membership in the Associated Press, publishing later telegraphic news than any other evening paper reaching this section of the state, and its local news is compiled with a thought to accuracy and subject matter that can be read in any home.

Through the purchase of the Recorder new readers have been added to those present subscription period has expired they will continue as readers of the Gazette.

WAITING ROOM AT GAZETTE OFFICE

For the convenience of the public the Gazette office can be used as a waiting room for the street car seats are provided and you are welcome to make use of the office as you please.

ACCURACY OF NEWS.

One of the essentials of any newspaper is its news columns. The Gazette is a member of the Associated Press one of the greatest news gathering associations in the world. It would be well if the Associated Press, its purposes and practices were better understood alike by reader and the general public. Quoting from a recent bulletin as follows the real purposes and aims of the association can be better understood.

The institution bears a very important relation to American life and is well worth studying. Its telegrams are printed primarily in $50 newspapers and are copied or re-written in unnumbered thousands of other daily, weekly, or monthly publications. It is safe to say that they are read by over three-fourths of the people of the country, and from the intelligence they convey practically everyone gathers the information current events.

All will agree that it is important to use no stronger word, that the market reports be trustworthy. What assurance is there, not only that the reports of The Associated Press are honest, but that out of the necessities of the case, they must be more certain of accuracy than any other market reports? One good reason arises out of the magnitude of the association work. There are persons who think it would be better to have a half-dozen small agencies acting in sharp competition, but this is a mistake. Such rivalry would not, from any point of view, tend to greater accuracy. And it is far less important that the citizen gets prompt news than that he gets true news. However desirable it may be to be first in the field in the presentation of news and this feature of the work is not to be undervalued, still its reputation for truth and strict impartiality is the best asset of The Associated Press. And no smaller agency can possibly offer as great a guarantee for accuracy or impartiality.

First there are the traditions of half a century which must be lived up to. This spirit which animates every one in the service of a good deal, but it is not all. More important is the fact that every telegram of The Associated Press is subjected to such a degree of censorship as to make untruthful or biased reports practically impossible. Every one familiar with the work knows it is impossible for any one in the service, from the General Manager to the least important agent at the most remote point, to send out an untruthful dispatch and escape detection. One may write a biased or inaccurate statement for a single newspaper and succeed with it, but this cannot be done with the argus-eyed millions who read the dispatches of The Associated Press. Obviously then, the very magnitude of The Associated Press work tends to make truthfulness and impartiality in the service imperative. It cannot be used to "grind any one's ax" to serve any special interest, or to help any political party or faction or propaganda.

This is not laying claim to any great virtue. It is saying that, under its system of operation and in view of the millions of critics passing upon its work, The Associated Press is automatically truthful and fair. If a man complains that The Associated Press is run in the interest of this party, or that, it is perfectly clear that what he wants is not fair play, but a leaning his way. As one evidence of the truthfulness of The Associated Press reports, it is significant that, during the existence of the present organization, damages have never been paid in any action for libel.

THE DIAZ FAMILY.

Announcement comes from Mexico that President Huerta has decided to use Felix Diaz, a nephew of the former president of the republic as his striking horse at the coming election. This latest turn in Mexican politics comes as a surprise and none greater is the announcement that General Blanquet, Mexican Minister of War has ordered Diaz to return to the capital at once.

General Diaz is, of course, immediately responsible to General Blanquet, but that the latter is simply executing a command promulgated by the chief executive goes without saying. From Paris General Diaz is expected to return to Mexico on the first

SPUR MOMENT

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

THE LONELIEST PLACE IN THE WORLD.

They say the best way to make a winter pass quickly is to indorse a note in the fall. That has only a slight connection with the momentous affair that I am about to set down in my diary for I signed my note in the spring.

I had often said that I would never sign a note for any man, not even my brother, but about six months ago an old friend of my youth came into my office with a hard-luck tale that would have dragged my tears from a director of the beet trust.

He said that, although he had not seen me in nineteen years, he knew he would come to his rescue. He had been out in Oklahoma where a cyclone had blown his farm away, including a magnificent barn containing 30,000 bushels of fine winter wheat.

The cyclone was so strong that it blew his ardent son well away and he was three weeks without water. That was tough surely, but seemed to be only a prelude to the tale. It seems that nine of his children were blown away in the cyclone and he had never been able to find a trace of them. With his wife and remaining eleven children he had come back to the old home town. He had a shirt to his back and he was wearing a pair of shoes that he had borrowed from a railroad brakeman who worked nights and didn't need the shoes in the daytime. He hadn't had a mouthful to eat in seven weeks and his wife and eleven children likewise had not tasted food.

On the square, the story that old friend pulled on me would have caused John D. to loosen up to 10 cents or so. If he should have heard it he would be kind of a story that would have gotten to Russel Sage. My friend, I said, I would sign a note with him for $25 so he could get a swell job with the circuit air company as conductor. The $25 was to be used as security for the uniform. After crying over his story for two hours I signed the note. That was six months ago.

"Alone in a great city." It sounds like the title of an old time melodrama, but it is the statement of a living ghostly fact.

You are encircled by walls of humanity, which recede as you approach them. You are adrift in a sea of persons, but none of them touches you. You see them pass and repass, each with his interesting story of life behind his serious or smiling face. But you cannot read the tale. It is for his friends, his acquaintances, his kin, not for you, literally "a stranger in a strange land."

You must be wary of making advances. The city views such with suspicion, horn of painful experiences with confidence men, with sellers of alluring goods that shall make the buyer rich and the seller poor—perhaps.

Brother or sister city dweller:

Are you a home occupier in the city?

Do you know the joys of your own fireside, the happiness of possessing family and friends?

From your store of content can you not spare a little for the dweller within your gates?

If there is in your city or town no association, no movement, for extending the hand of cheer and good fellowship to the man or woman bravely trying to overcome the loneliness of a city, will you not form one?

If there is one already within your reach, will you not give to it a little of your time and energy?

Remember Him who said:

"I was abhored and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger and ye took me in."

POLICE ON SEARCH FOR CLEVER FORGER

Passes Worthless Checks at Two Business Houses and Makes a Quick Getaway.

Local police made a diligent search this afternoon for a clever forger who attempted to pass worthless checks at two retail stores. He purchased a gray overcoat at a clothing store shortly before noon giving for the same a check for the sum of $28.

While the clerk who sold the coat asked him to wait while he had the check passed on at the First National bank, the man took opportunity to escape, wearing the new garment. Information was given at the bank that the check was worthless. A check for $6 was passed at a local bakery about one o'clock by a man who answered the same description as the one who stole the overcoat.

The fellow is described as a man of medium build, five feet seven inches tall and weighing about 160 pounds. He had a round smooth shaven face. He wore a good looking blue serge suit, a red sweater vest, and a broad-brimmed tan colored hat.

TO HEAR PETITIONS FOR NATURALIZATION

Judge George Grimm of Circuit Court Will be in City Tomorrow and Wednesday.

Clerk of the Court Jessie Earle and his deputy, were busy today making out the application blanks of eleven-hour petitions for citizenship and one hundred and eighty-seven will be passed upon by Circuit Court Judge George Grimm when he arrives tomorrow. Tuesday and Wednesday will be entirely given up to the consideration of petitions for second or full papers of citizenship. The United States Bureau of Immigration will send an inspector to conduct the examination of applicants. The reason for the rush this afternoon is the fact that old declarations of intention cannot be filed after September 25 and those who possess them will have to take out new first papers if they wait until after this date to apply for second papers. Those filed at this time will be acted upon at the February term of the circuit court.

MOORE HAS HEARING IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Follower of Miller Carnival Company Pleads Not Guilty to a Revolting Charge.

Jack Moore, whose case in the circuit court was dismissed by Judge Grimm, was arraigned before Judge Maxfield in the municipal court this morning and plead not guilty to a charge of a revolting nature preferred by a boy under twelve years of age. His preliminary hearing was set for two o'clock this afternoon and Judge Maxfield appointed E. H. Peterson as his attorney.

Following his examination, Moore was held for trial, his case being set for either Saturday or Monday. His bail was fixed at $1,000 in default of which he will spend his time in the county jail.

BIDS ROMANTIC FAREWELL TO HIS SUMMER'S PRIDE

Stopping on the middle of Milwaukee bridge Saturday afternoon a stranger solemnly removed from his head a dripping straw hat, placed its crown to his lips, and then flung it far out above the black waters beneath. The cold north winds caught it and carried it down stream until it alighted and suited like a fairy boat on the surface of the river. The stranger watched it with misty eyes until it had disappeared from sight. It was a most dramatic farewell to the last of the season's straws.

Saturday's and Sunday's rain and freezing temperature was fatal to the wearers of the straw hat and those who had been late in purchasing the latest fall styles in headgear, made haste to protect themselves for another such an attack. Clothing stores report an increasing demand for the many new offerings in men's hats.

TAKE ADJOURNMENTS IN SEVERAL CASES

Actions Against Mrs. Tripke, Joe Bowers, Mrs. Koran and John Hagan Put Over Two Weeks.

There were a number of cases scheduled for trial in the municipal court this morning, but for various reasons they were all adjourned. H. P. Peterson is attorney for Mrs. Tripke and John L. Fisher is counsel for Bowers. Both are out on $250 bail. Mrs. Tripke's bonds having been signed on Saturday.

The case of the city against Mrs. Cyprian Koran and John Hagan, both arrested on two charges, has also been adjourned for two weeks on the request of City Attorney W. H. Dougherty.

But one person was arraigned before Judge Maxfield this morning charged with drunkenness. Arthur Bell, a traveling steeple-jack, who had imbued freely of Saturday night, pleaded guilty and was fined $10. It was his first offense received a fine of $5 or seven days in jail. As he had several jobs in prospect it is probable that he will continue his work under the new commitment law.

SUMMER STILL HERE BUT DEATH IS NEAR

Clothes Press Raided Yesterday for Heavier Underwear, Wool Blankets and Comforters.

Summer is still here and will remain until tomorrow, according to the astrophysers, but it has got its death chill, for yesterday clothes presses were raided for heavy underwear, oxford and pumps were laid away for high shoes, and blankets and comforters were pulled out of closets at the urgent call of those who shivered and trembled through the night before.

Happily we are the home that had furnaces and boilers in order and coal bins prepared, or else could resort to stove or glowing grate. The presence of a coal wagon on the streets indicated that there were those who were caught with empty coal bins.

LIONIZING CRIMINALS.

MAN'S admirations are one of the best measures of his own value. To admire something really admirable is a valuable experience and a sign of character bent in the right direction.

To admire where there is no healthy cause for admiration is a sign of decadence.

Can anything be more repugnant to a normal mind than the way in which American people lionize and celebrate decadent notabilities for whom the only normal feeling is pity and distaste?

To take a recent and notable example, can you imagine any more painful reflections upon American admirations than the way in which Harry K. Thaw has been lionized during the last two weeks by some of our newspapers?

What kind of necrophile he wore what he ate for breakfast, each precious word he chose to utter, in short every minute detail about this unfortunate lunatic was chronicled with as much care as if it were a national hero. And the tone in which this drabble was written! Anyone who did not know the facts, if he were to read about Thaw in some of our newspapers would think he was reading about a noble, talented and persecuted young man who was the nation's chief interest at the present time.

Again, You probably remember the notorious case of Clarence Richison. He was the minister who murdered his sweetheart by giving her a poisonous powder.

The poor girl was willing to take it because she thought it was a medicine to get her out of her unfortunate condition, for which he was responsible. One would think it would make a hero of such a man. And yet while he lay in jail, a self-confessed murderer, he was the recipient of many messages of sympathy and even flowers from people who had read the newspaper reports of his case.

Nan Patterson and Hattie LeBlanc are two excellent examples of the popular willingness to make heroines of women who hold notorious positions in the day's news. Their connection with sensational murder cases brought them hundreds of letters of sympathy, offers of big salaries to appear on the vaudeville stage, and even proposals of marriage.

Of course someone is going to say that this is the fault of the newspapers, and ask why they will publish such stuff.

Why indeed? Simply because they know that the public will read it. Newspapers are not written to please their editors. They are written to please the people. And if the newspaper lionizes these miserable creatures it is because it is trying to reflect the public attitude.

If you don't like this type of article write and tell the editor of your daily paper whenever you see anything along this line. The paper is published for you and will be altered to suit you as soon as enough of you choose to show that you want alterations. And for the honor of the American people and the safe guarding of American youth, whose ideals must necessarily be affected by such lionizing of criminals, may that day be soon.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) A few years ago I was in the habit of cutting my fingernails very short; now, though I try to have them longer, I have to cut off the tips before they reach the tips of my fingers. How can I remedy this? Would a professional manicurist help any?

(2) A pompadour is very becoming to me, but my hair always parts at the center or side unless I have it tight. How can I remedy it?

(3) Will you please give me directions for cleaning a pine felt hat with cornmeal and gasoline or benzine, and coloring it with rouge?

(4) How can I dry-clean a worsted coat?

(5) Would it be proper for me to accompany a woman I have never met to another state to visit her son, if she asks him to ask me to do so? Should I pay all my expenses?

(6) Will persons touch the skin or harm it? — GOLDIE LOCH.

(1) Rub vaseline well into the roots of your nails; that will make them grow. It would be a good idea to go to a professional manicurist once or twice, watch her operations and get her advice. Then you could finish the treatment at home.

(2) At night, when preparing the hair, braid the pompadour part over the face, rather tightly. In time the hair will grow that way and not part.

(3) Moisten cornmeal, or flour, with gasoline. Cover the hat well with this, let it remain for a day. Then brush the hat well. I never heard of coloring a hat with rouge. It would be better to get a tube of stencil paint; dilute it to the tint you want and paint the hat with this, using a soft wide brush.

(4) Dip in a quantity of gasoline let it a little, then rinse in clean gasoline and put on a coat-hanger to dry. Do all of this out doors and keep away from fire.

(5) If the woman is entirely respectable I see no harm in it. You should pay your own expenses, unless she invites you to be her guest.

(6) Yes; constant use of it is very bad for the skin. *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a very stubborn case of freckles and I am afraid to use everything, so I thought I would write for your advice. I have a friend that has the same kind of a case. We have both had freckles since we were small, about fifteen years now.

FRECKLES.

There is only one way to get rid of freckles, my dear, and that is to take the skin off your face. A very good dermatologist can do this with success, but I never would advise an amateur to use lemon juice on your skin. It will make the skin sore and it will peel off in time. If the skin is too sore, use cold cream on it. Keep from having freckles by wearing a broad-brimmed hat and a green veil when you go out in the sun.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a man twenty-five years old; have a girl two months my senior.

(1) Have been engaged to her about 18 months. We differ in religion. We both are obstinate in our beliefs, she vowed never to change and I likewise. Do you think it advisable for us to marry? We love one another devotedly.

(2) She is willing to marry in my church, but wants to be married in her church. What do you think of a double ceremony? Is it permitted?

Please advise and as to the best plan to follow. — SINCERE HEARTS.

(1) If you cannot agree now, how can you expect to get along together when you are married? There is nearly always serious trouble when people of different faiths marry. If you love her above all things, you will not mind changing your church, because, after all, it is the same God for all of us, and He is just the same to anyone what the form of worship we give Him.

(2) You can be married in both churches if you will. The civil part of the marriage is the only part that will make you legally man and wife under law of the peace can do that.

When the feet are tired a foot bath with a generous spoonful of soda will be a wonderful relief.

AN INTERESTING ROMANCE.

An Unknown Scotch Lassie Becomes Famous Through Her Art and Beauty.

A young Scotch girl by name Jane Arden, was recently presented at the English Court, and a month later was married to the only son of Sir Edward Macfarland. When this little Scotch lassie came into notice London leading artists said: "If all the world was turned into a more beautiful face and figure could not be found."

The Macfarland blood is very blue. Sir Edward is one of the wealthiest and most distinguished linen weavers in the British Kingdom. The marriage of his only son and heir to an unknown Highland girl was an event that made society gossip.

A beautiful face was not all that Jane Arden possessed. She was an artist born; the story of her fame and fortune runs like this:

At the age of sixteen she took up designing in a country school. Her teachers sent some of her designs and patterns to the Macfarland mills, offering a premium.

Young Macfarland had just returned from Oxford and had entered into his father's business as a partner. Using

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Peel and size good tart cooking apples. Roll out the pastry and cover bottom and sides of a perforated pie pan. Fill with the apples, heating them up a little in the center. It is almost impossible to give the amount of sugar, as that varies with the tartness of the apples and size of the pie, but add enough to a cup and a half; over this grate nutmeg or cinnamon and dot bits of butter well over all and two tablespoonsfuls of water. Put over an upper crust, being careful not to stretch, but lay on loosely and fasten the upper edges together. With a pointed knife loosen the bottom crust from the pan, then when the expansion takes place in the baking both crusts come up together and no juice is lost. Bake about thirty-five minutes or until the apples are done.

TRUE WORTH OF WORK IS THEME OF SERMON

NOBILITY AND DIGNITY SET FORTH BY THE REV. JOSEPH CHALMERS HAZEN.

SANCTION IS DIVINE

Labor Required And Necessary to Development of All Powers of Man—Caution of the Scriptures.

Taking for his sermon the ninth verse, chapter four of St. John, "I must work the work of him that sent me while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work," the Rev. Joseph Chalmers Hazen delivered a masterly sermon at the morning worship at the Baptist church, Sunday morning on "A time to work."

His sermon was founded around the part of the chapter where Jesus and his disciples came across a blind beggar, the man blind from birth. His disciples asked their leader, "Who did this man? This man, his parents, that he was born blind?" According to the laws of the Jews prevalent at that time, it was either a sin of the parents or the victim himself that caused physical defects and the disciples seeking to place responsibility for the man's blindness inquired of Jesus, the cause. Contrary to expectations Christ answered, "Neither has this man sinned or his parents but that the works of God shall be manifested in him, I must work while it is day, the night cometh when no man can work."

Jesus did not condemn the beggar, in answering the concrete question and refused to account for his blindness and to locate sin. "The average person is too anxious to blame, gossips and become partly interested in pushing unfortunates down beneath society, giving them little chance for benediction. Jesus' true teaching is in helping our fellowmen, not respecting the why and wherefore of their sin. Christ turning to the beggar anointed his eyes with clay and instructed him to wash in the pool of Siloam, which was done.

The beggar's eyes opened and he saw for the first time in his life, the cured man had a new story to tell, "Now sing, sing and he knew that Jesus was the living and master."

"I will and must work" is an overwhelming conviction that leads all people to do their just duty to God and mankind despite what others may do to shirk their work." The teaching of the Master to obtain full value of our lives. The meaning of Jesus in that we should work while it is day, for when night cometh no man can work, is that our lives are all most too brief and short and the life of Jesus, with all that he had been sent to accomplish in the world, was very short, even shorter than the life of the average man of today. To fill one's place among society anyone must labor at all times according to the teaching of Christ for night may come and bring short all chances to fulfill our purposes.

Pausing from his text to compare the action of the Democratic party with their national administration, and their action in carrying out their party pledges and platform the speaker said: "I can see no other reason, than the law that Jesus laid down in this chapter caused President Wilson to follow closely his obligations to the voters of the country. To honestly meet their demands, the spirit of 'I must do certain things,' lead the President to carry the House, Senate, himself with the dominating idea of passing the tariff and currency legislation according to their lines. Opportunities to work are often turned aside for coveted privileges and for social pleasure and no matter if it is that person's bound duty to perform that task, he often shirks it. Such shirking is often deadly to success.

"It is often that one apologizes for some unpleasant duty or to be found in one's working clothes, busy at a day's labor, but it is greater credit to find this way than in absolute idleness. Hard work is an honor, a fact that has been prevalent through the history of the world and even from the time long before Christ, even during his reign and at the present time it has been a question of the people how to curb this evil. We find in the study of early history that even the most powerful and respected kings fell a victim to this curse. Great cities in ancient history were not exempt from immoral corruption and in some instances gained such apace that the very earth seemed to swallow up the very heart of the great and populous cities. Poverty, cities and even nations were ruined by moral corruption and today it is true that localities, villages, great cities and even nations and business concerns are wrecked by the scourge. It creeps into the home, into the church, into the family and sure ruin is the result."

"I do not know why we call it commercial vice unless we compare its right hand companion, liquor. We realize the sale of liquor and by paying a fee for the dealers becomes equal to the merchants of the city in the sale of his goods. In certain cities we find the officials confining the vice restricted to certain districts and here only and by consent of the people, the government allows vice to exist in segregated parts. Vice becomes protected by the strong arm of the law, as the government collects fees and it almost becomes equal in a business way with the saloons being allowed to exist in all its horrors."

"Since it is to be admitted that the saloons are a great institution and it is claimed by many that without their license, the government could not exist and that it is every man's privilege to go and drink if he so chooses and the American men hates to have anyone interfere with his rights, it is a characteristic of him, I would hate to feel that the government is dependent upon the saloons for an existence but since it is allowed, we have to fight it. Inmates of immoral districts are almost always the product of the saloons and they are a most powerful factor in the breaking of many American homes. Some say it is necessary to the city and with medical attention, payment of fees it is all right and men desire it. God help the man who thinks that vice of this nature is a necessary evil. It is not to the best interests of the community that such conditions exist but in most cases to satisfy the lust and passion of the few."

"How should we control vice? We ought to insist that there be no gambling in any form, no chance games should be tolerated so that no young man would be able to find temptation. The average young man in his pleasure seeking will inhabit the pool halls, he sees the rest of his companions there, the instinct to have a good time leads him to take a chance, to gamble, then a little stronger and when he hears one man ask another to drink, he comes to believe that the leading citizens of the city are doing this and he has a perfect right to do the same."

"All the responsibility is not due to the saloons as American boys expect and have a right to expect pleasure and the parent who does not provide social enjoyment for their children is greatly to blame. The attitude of the community is largely responsible for their vice condition and without the people wanting the laws forced, it is hard for the suppression of the evils."

"Parents should know where their daughters and sons spend their evenings. It is their right and their duty. As fathers and mothers, should arise and state our wants, and fight until we have them. Our politicians give us what we want in most cases and it is up to us then to state exactly what we want and stand for it."

"Woman's dress during the present time also was a great factor in the immoral problems and the boys cannot be harmed in many cases. Extreme fashion leads from one thing to another and with no authority over boys and girls, when night comes they go, come and do as they please, finding it a very painful end. If the parents provided work at home as was done in the past, there would be no time to accumulate immoral habits."

Rev. Hazen made an earnest plea for the parents to offer and hold clean places for wholesome social affairs, making our boys and girls clean young men and women. It is up to us to furnish them with some places of amusement that will take the place of street corners and saloons and pool halls, and with the coming of that will aid and most entirely solve the vice question."

LATE MUSHROOMS REPORTED NUMEROUS THROUGHOUT COUNTY

September Considered Period When Most Tasty of These Fungi Make Appearance.

September mushrooms have long been considered as the most tasty of this species of edible fungi that growing the whole twelve months. The cool sharp air appears to give a delicate flavor to the crop that is hard to equal earlier in the season. Reports from throughout the country are to the effect that there is a goodly crop this fall and while the cold weather of the past few days may retard their growth somewhat and perhaps shorten the season still many large sized gatherings have been reported.

Despite the frequently reported cases of mushroom poisoning the popularity of this fungi food has multiplied in the United States in ten years. The mushroom now bids fair to become a common article of food rather than a luxury. The market demand for it is heavier than ever before. In addition thousands of families are procuring mushrooms for their own use either raising them from spores or gathering them fresh in the fields and woodlands or perhaps in their own yards. More than 700 species of edible mushrooms have been discovered in this country within a half century. The number of additional species of poisonous fungi or similar appearance is comparatively small. Notwithstanding the possibilities of poisoning the food resources of the nation have been materially increased by the recognition of the mushroom.

Guarding Against Poisoning.

The United States government is making every possible effort to protect the public from the dangers of mushroom poisoning. A physiological exchange is maintained by a bureau of agriculture for this purpose. Every day quantities of mushrooms are being sent in from different parts of the country to be tested by government experts.

The rush is always greatest in this exchange after a prolonged spell of damp weather which is conducive to the development of wild mushrooms. The experts in charge of the exchange can assure themselves by a glance as to the poison quality of a specimen. This is not a sufficient test however.

Tasting is the only reliable and only an expert can taste unknown mushrooms with safety. The official mushroom taster of the United States is Mrs. Patterson of the mycological exchange, who is sometimes called the government mushroom woman. Mrs. Patterson has tested all of the more important fungi of mushroom type, native to this country, as well as many specimens sent to her from foreign countries. Her decision as to the edibility of a mushroom is regarded as final.

Mushroom tasting is an art that can be mastered only by long experience. It requires courage and patience. The first rule is never to swallow a mushroom via when tasting mushrooms. Always have water thoroughly to rinse the mouth if there is a question as to the edibility of a mushroom. The laboratory rule "rinse every conceivable seven times" is especially applicable to the mushroom taster. The odor is also a test. It is said that the taste of the most deadly mushroom may be rather pleasant but the odor is unmistakable to any one who has once recognized it.

The nutritive value of mushrooms is greater than generally supposed. According to scientific tests it is nearly equivalent to that of meat. Dried mushrooms contain 31.18 per cent protein, 19 per cent potassium salts and 23.2 per cent of fatty matter and 4.42 per cent of carbohydrates. The comparative nitrogenous value of food calculated as per hundred parts gives bread, 8.02 per cent; catfish, 9.04 per cent; leguminous foods, such as peas and beans, 27.05 per cent, potatoes, 4.85 per cent and mushrooms, 32 per cent. This indicates that mushrooms contain more than six times the nitrogenous food value of potatoes.

Considering how great this food value is, it is most unfortunate that thousands of pounds of mushrooms are being wasted each year, which should go to the nourishment of the nation. This is chiefly due to the ignorance of the average person as to how to distinguish between the poisonous fungi and the delicious edible mushrooms.

The department of agriculture mycologists frankly confess that up to this time they have been unable to establish any test which may be relied upon.

POSTMASTERS

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Sivash."

A postmaster is a man who did not labor for his party in vain.

The postmastership is legal tender during every political campaign and used once in four years to reward nations who refused to be stampeded by the extravagant claims of the other side. There are many but have had plenty of chance to do so.

A wise government has so organized the postoffice department that it can be run on and on forever, no matter who is on first or second class postmaster. While the postmaster of a great city takes his last month's salary and retires in favor of his wife, the opposition who sole knowledge of the business is an experience in getting stamps to stick on envelopes, business doesn't stagger for a minute. It might, however, if the postmaster tried to run the office.

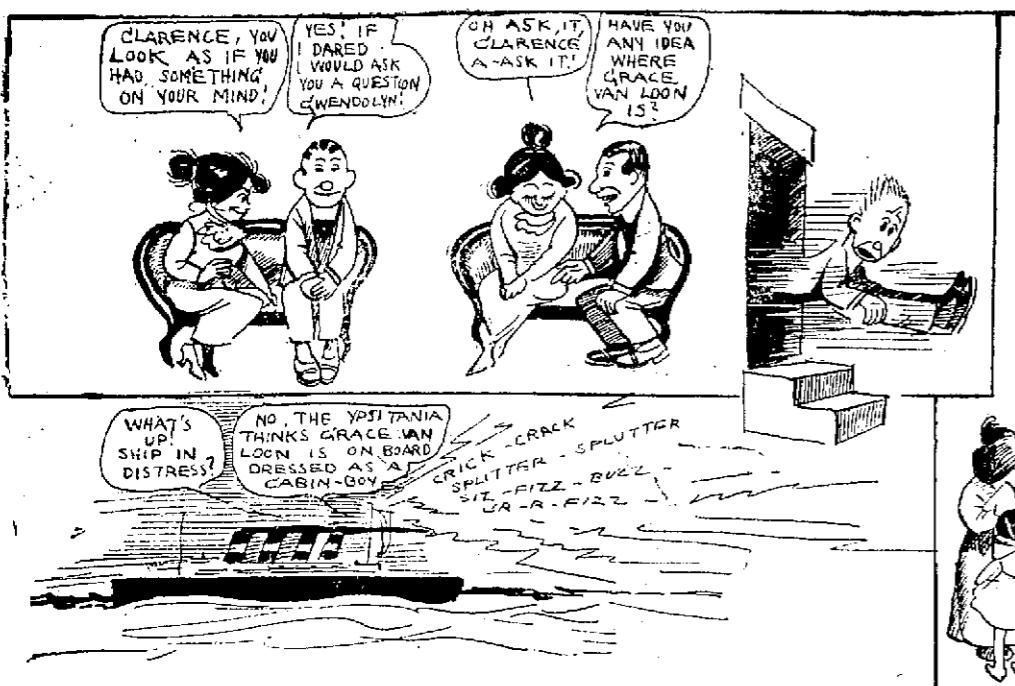

The government would make itself very popular by abolishing first class postmasters, and putting the saving into more second and even third class stamp clerks.

TERMS IN USE BY OLD-TIME CARVERS. At the banquets of the eighteenth century the man who carved needed to know words as well as the use of knives. Venison he "broached," the peacock he "disarrayed," the rabbit and woodcock he "unmated" and the crab he "tamed." Dismembering a swan was "killing" him and the crane under his knife was "displayed." The peacock was "disarrayed."

The City that Was, Etc.

But Rosalie did not proceed directly along the road of treacheries which she was traveling. Victoria went away with the capricious suddenness of all Rosalie's spirit friends. The voice of Laughing-Eyes, the child control, burst in. Upon Miss Estrilla, Rosalie used Laughing-Eyes sparingly. With an ignorant and overimpassable sister she was an invaluable feature, this Laughing-Eyes. To a person of greater discernment, the child impersonation was likely to be ridiculous. Rosalie usually employed her, therefore, only to fill in the chinks to occupy the time while she was thinking. For Rosalie, after thirty years experience, produced Laughing-Eyes with her left hand, so to speak. The child patter came by instinct; it required no effort of the conscious will; her mind was free to think and plan. Now, however, she wove Laughing-Eyes into her web.

"Lady, I'm gone!" said Laughing-Eyes. "Pretty lady! Another spirit—I see pretty things!" They shone—oh—so gay. Come back! No, he will not stay, she paused here.

And now Miss Estrilla spoke again, and in such a tone that Rosalie knew she might hurry to her climax.

"Can't you bring him back, Laughing-Eyes?" she said. "Oh, please bring him back. Tell him, oh, tell him that I am not angry!" A dry sob stuck the silence of the room.

"No, he is afraid. And he is weak in spirit," babbled Laughing-Eyes.

"Maybe we've come again—maybe I and Laughing-Eyes, signed and sealed of Miguel and ictus, and a dozen spirits impudent to Miss Estrilla. Yet always in her babbings she seemed to hold the atmosphere of truth; she referred casually and in remote ways to a dozen facts about Miss Estrilla's family and her past. Presently her voice died away; and Rosalie lay silent and impulsive, waiting for Miss Estrilla to wake her.

CHAPTER XV.

John Talks.

In the following scene—held next afternoon at the special and plaintive request of Miss Estrilla—Rosalie Le Grange reached at last the very kernel of the matter.

She brought "John."

She had prepared by a special and subsidiary line of play, for this vital move. She had been cultivating Constance Hanska. With arts all her own, Rosalie broke through the reserves of that dispassioned widow, from that she lured Constance into further confidences, which involved the personal peculiarities of the late Captain Hanska, such as his way of speaking, the quality of his voice, and his methods with women. When Rosalie settled down to the fifth scene, she had in her mind a picture of John H. Hanska which was good enough for any of her purposes.

The preliminaries were over; Laughing-Eyes was gone; her babbling was back to the land of spirit; Doctor Carver held control.

A spirit has been trying to communicate, but he is a new spirit and not yet strong. He says that the lady's sickness is not of the body; it is of the mind. He also is not happy yet. John was his name on the flesh-plane—it is of the mind. He also is not happy yet. John was his name on the flesh-plane—it is hard—over here must make an effort—it is strain on us as on the medium.

I get an "H." In the ensuing silence, Miss Estrilla gave one hard sob.

The silence lasted for half a minute. Rosalie strained and struggled as though a tumult were going on within. Then came a man's voice, higher and softer than that of Doctor Carver.

"I am John, Margaret. I can not stay long. I am not strong—they tell us over here—that we must forgive even as we are forgiven. But—I will come again."

"Oh, John—I am trying to forgive, oh, do you understand—wait—gashed Miss Estrilla!

But John spoke no more.

He may grow stronger after a time," said the voice of Doctor Carver, "if this poor earth vessel through which we speak does not break." So he finished the pertinent part of that session.

The scenes were coming every day now. Miss Estrilla wished it; and Rosalie granted her request with an appearance of indulgent reluctance. The next day, John intruded again. This time, it appeared, he had grown strong enough to speak consecutively.

"I have not full power yet. But it is coming, I grow stronger. But the shock in my breast—I feel it." That was something of a venture. Rosalie waited to see what reply it would draw.

"Did you that come first then? Oh, surely you didn't feel that?" asked Miss Estrilla as though in a fever of anxiety.

Rosalie, thinking like lightning, felt herself for the moment at her ends. Upon the answer to that crisp question everything might depend.

"If I had—if I only had!" Miss Estrilla went triumphantly: the voice of John answered with caressing reassuring words. "But John, why can you not forgive?"

vague. She let her body leave, as though John were retaining his control with difficulty.

"No," said the voice, "that was not first. It had come already. But, somehow—I knew."

"Oh, thank God!" cried Miss Estrilla.

John departed on this. Doctor Carver and Laughing-Eyes spread clouds of mist, intellectual but rosy. They went; Rosalie entered that apparent sleep with which she concluded her "trances." As she lay there, with nothing to do but think, this new perplexity revolved itself in her mind. What mean that sudden question? Did that come first?" The trail was leading him with guesses of which she had never dreamt.

Rosalie held three more seances with Miss Estrilla before she reached the final vital one to which all her diplomatics had been leading. Let me omit the lumber and packing, at lassos, mumblings, long passages of sleep, solemn orations of Doctor Carver, babblings of Laughing-Eyes, revelations concerning the family life of Miguel and Victoria. Let me but report these little dialogues between John in the spirit, and Miss Estrilla (or Margarita Perez) in the flesh, to which this hocus-pocus was only an approach.

With all the will-power that she had, Rosalie kept herself from the slightest movement while she heard that simple startling problem, "he" was time to close this seance. She summoned Laughing-Eyes, who saw Miss Estrilla good-by in a weak failing trance; she settled into her concluding "trance."

In the last two sittings, Rosalie had been awakening from trance of her own accord. Now, she slumbered for two or three minutes before she let her eyes flutter open; her face resume expression.

Miss Estrilla had controlled her weeping. To Rosalie's cheerful, "Well, I'm long," she returned no answer.

Rosalie looked at her sharply. "I'm afraid you don't like this any more—in your state of nerves," she said. "Only reason I've kept it up was because it seemed to be doing so much good. But today you look out good. An' me—a wet rag is cast-iron beside my feelin' this mornin'." Tell me—was it long after I stopped talking before I woke up?"

"No. It was shorter than ever before."

"M-hm! Well, those that know me better than I know myself have watched my trances. They say that when I wake up soon after the spirits go, it means just one thing—it seems to me now that this mediumship is like a bucket in the ocean, and it overflows. Tell me—was it about a minute?"

On this scene of Irish business activity suddenly entered Rosalie Le Grange. As she stepped into the door, she was large-eyed, serious, a quiver with inner intensity. She broke into a smile, however, as she surveyed the Thomas W. North Advertising Agency at work. Bobo Tonney and his amateur stenographer had heard the steps; but each, as people will do when they are intent, failed to look up from his uncompleted line until startled by Rosalie:

"My! Such a pair of little workers!"

Tommy grinned.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

But Miss Estrilla raised the eyes shade, and Rosalie saw that she was weeping again. "Oh, just another!"

"Another seance, John is speaking."

"Ah, I really love you. But I find it hard to forgive."

"Don't you understand, John, that it is not revenge. It was duty."

"I know. There is much that I do not understand, but I do understand that. In the flesh, I was always attracted by the glitter of jewels—"

Another seance, John is speaking; Miss Estrilla answering.

"Ah, I really love you. But I find it hard to forgive."

"Don't you understand, John, that it is not revenge. It was duty."

"I know. There is much that I do not understand, but I do understand that. In the flesh, I was always attracted by the glitter of jewels—"

This was a lead into territory only partially explored. And the road opened.

"I think there were two parts of you, John. But, oh, the better part is 'fool if you turn your little lady,'"

"I am going, I am not strong enough yet to endure reproach."

"Oh, I will not reproach you again. You must forgive. You know how little you have to forgive. Wait, John."

"I can not tell you now," said the voice of John. "I am—growing weak—stunned—"

"Oh, he's gone away!" broke in the voice of Laughing-Eyes.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications of the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.
